

I don't buy cable because of the horrible, unregulated content on some channels that I refuse to have in my house with my children. However, there are a handful of channels I would pay for if I had the option and if they were not outrageously priced. Using myself as an example, companies would make a profit from me when they otherwise would not have.